Weather Situation

A high pressure system lingers about far western NSW, as a weak trough skims the southeast later today and into Wednesday morning. A new high will move across waters to the south on Wednesday and be centred over Tasmania on Thursday, as it continues to extend a ridge over SA on Friday.

Forecast for the rest of Tuesday 23 June

Isolated showers near southern coastal districts. West to northwest winds in the far southeast, tending light and variable elsewhere.

Forecast for Wednesday 24 June

Cold to very cold for central and eastern districts with areas of morning frost and fog. Isolated showers about southern coastal districts and possibly developing over the Nullarbor Plain. Maximum temperatures below average. Northeast to southeasterly winds, tending west to southwesterly in the far southeast until the evening.

Forecast for Thursday 25 June

Isolated showers about parts of the southern coastal districts and over the Nullarbor Plain, possibly extending further into southern pastoral areas. Areas of patchy morning fog about the Eyre Peninsula and the eastern districts. Maximum temperatures below average. East to southeasterly winds, tending northeasterly in the far west.

Forecast for Friday 26 June

Isolated light showers possibly about the Flinders and southern pastoral districts. Areas of morning fog about the Agricultural Areas. Maximum temperatures below average. East to southeasterly winds, tending northeasterly in the far west.

Forecast for Saturday 27 June

Isolated light showers on and east of the ranges. Possible morning fog about the ranges. Maximum temperatures below average. Northeast to southeast winds, tending east to northeasterly throughout the day.

Cumulative rainfall totals to the end of Saturday: dry across the north, less than 2 mm for most districts, 2-5 mm about Kangaroo Island, the southeast districts and possibly Nullarbor and southern pastorals. Isolated falls of 5-15 mm possible about windward coasts of Kangaroo Island and the Lower South East district.

The next routine forecast will be issued at 4:00 am CST Wednesday.
