Weather Situation

A high pressure system over NSW will continue to move eastwards to be centred over the Tasman Sea by Monday. Northerly winds freshen over the state on Tuesday ahead of a weakening cold front mid-week, with a second cold front expected late in the week.

Forecast for the rest of Sunday 7 June

Mostly clear. Northeast to northerly winds.

Forecast for Monday 8 June

Isolated fog patches about eastern parts of the northern agricultural area. Mostly dry. Maximum temperatures generally above average. Northeast to northwesterly winds, freshening in the west.

Forecast for Tuesday 9 June

Showers developing about the west during the day. Isolated showers about the northeast. Maximum temperatures above average. Freshening north to northwesterly winds, shifting west to southwesterly in the far southwest in the evening.

Forecast for Wednesday 10 June

Showers about central and eastern parts of the agricultural area, contracting eastwards and clearing later. Maximum temperatures above average, tending below average in the southwest. North to northwesterly winds, ahead of a cooler west to southwesterly change about western and central parts, extending throughout apart from the far northeast during the day.

Forecast for Thursday 11 June

Mainly dry, apart from possible isolated showers in the far southwest later. Maximum temperatures above average. Northeast to northwesterly winds, freshening in the west.

Cumulative rainfall totals to the end of Thursday: Generally less than 5 mm about the agricultural area and west, increasing to 5 to 10 mm about the southwest and western coasts of Eyre Peninsula and Kangaroo Island, with isolated falls of 10 to 20 mm possible in these areas.

The next routine forecast will be issued at 4:00 am CST Monday.
